It may be recognized by its boiling point and the following tests: a. Aniline combines with acids to form salts most of which are readily soluble in water. The hydrochloride has the formula $C_6H_5NH_2.HCl$. The others are combined on the same type. b. If to a dilute solution of aniline a dilute hypochlorite solution (bleaching powder will answer) be added a purple color is produced which turns to reddish brown. c.
