SUPPLIES NEEDED FOR ARMIES. Few have any comprehension of the immense quantities of supplies needed to fit out armies of the size now fighting in France and Flanders. A recent article in a London publication devoted to the tailoring and allied industries, shows how much labor and thought have been given to the creation of such splendidly equipped fighting forces. The clothing alone of those armies was a great feat. The British pre-war army clothing bill, the journal says, was 850,000 per annum, a sum considerably less than the present weekly expenditure. As against a peace time annual consumption of about 1,150,000 yards of woollen cloths, they have required a monthly supply of some 3,000,000 yards. Similarly, the consumption of cotton drill for uniforms has jumped from 630,000 yards per annum to about 2,120,000 yards per month, a still more amazing increase. An entirely new and novel demand was for fur coats for winter campaigning, for which no fewer than 3,000,000 skins have been used. Metal Badges By Tons. This enormous quantity of woollen cloths and cotton drill has had to be made up into many types of garments, involving an immense amount of labor. This meant not only pressing into service all existing clothing factories, but the building, or adapting, and staffing of scores of new ones of very large capacity, up to and exceeding plants of 1500 power-driven sewing machines. Taking the output of the largest factories at 25,000 to...
