By far the greater number of the many enquiries received BV I-v from British firms desirous of being placed in communication with enquiries, agents or customers are very vaguely worded. These enquiries could be more satisfactorily answered were they made in the form of separate questions. I notice that German, French, and Scandinavian firms frequently advertise in the local newspapers for agents or firms dealing in their particular products. I recommend this method to British enquirers, instead of trusting to the Consul happening to know of some suitable person. The commercial standing of applicants for such agencies can easily be ascertained through an Information Bureau, of which there are several here. Two large retail shops on the Stores principle have lately possible cash been established, and through selling solely for cash are able to uyers make prompt payments. These establishments deal in almost every...
